BACQUE (James) Papers

Gift of James Bacque, 2009

Dates: [1962]-2007

Extent: 100 boxes (14 metres)

Scope and Content: This collection is the first accession of James Bacque papers by the Fisher Library. It consists of the bulk of material – including the research, manuscript drafts, proofs and correspondence – for most of his fiction and non-fiction works, both published and unpublished. It also includes a large collection of POW correspondence Bacque received after publishing his book Other Losses, which he used for research into his follow-up, Crimes and Mercies. Other material in the collection include manuscripts for Bacque’s journalism work along with correspondence and editing work he did with Seal Books in the 1970s.

Bio Sketch: James Bacque, born May 19, 1929, is a writer, editor and one-time publisher. Educated at Upper Canada College in Toronto and then the University of Toronto, where he studied history and philosophy, Bacque began his career as a fiction writer, publishing the novels The Lonely One (Toronto: McClelland and Stewart, 1969; novel was re-titled Big Lonely when re-published by M&S in 1978), A Man of Talent (Toronto: newpress, 1972) and The Queen Comes to Minnicog (Toronto: Gage Publishing, 1979). He has also written a number of plays and teleplays.

In 1989, Bacque published his first non-fiction book, the controversial Other Losses (Toronto: Stoddart, 1989). The book thesis was that the Allied Supreme Commander Dwight Eisenhower’s policies caused the death of 790,000 German captives in internment camps through disease, starvation and cold from 1944 to 1949. He followed it up with two more World War II-related books: Just Raoul (Toronto: Stoddart, 1990) and Crimes and Mercies (Vancouver: Talonbooks, 2007). He also published another work of fiction, Our Father’s War (Toronto: Exile Editions, 2006).

James Bacque’s web site can be accessed at: <http://www.jamesbacque.com/>.

Arrangement note: Boxes 1-23 consist of material related Bacque’s fictional books, while boxes 24-84 are material for his non-fiction works.
