Biographical information:

Naomi Bell [by Naomi Bell]

For Naomi Bell Jewish folksongs are a mirror of Jewish life. She has collected and researched thousands of Yiddish and Hebrew folksongs, and has created programs on a wide variety of themes. Approaching folksong as social history, she traces various aspects of Jewish life in Europe, Israel and America as they are portrayed in song. In her numerous lecture-recitals she sings, accompanies herself at the piano, and explains the historical and cultural background of the songs.

Naomi Bell has presented musical lectures and courses to synagogues and public libraries, women's and seniors' organizations, study groups and educational conferences, and at The Institute for Jewish Learning. She has lectured at the University of Toronto, the Royal Ontario Museum, the Second International Yiddish Conference, and has been Scholar-in-Residence at Temple Sholom in Chicago. She was a performer at the Israel at Fifty pavilion at the C.N.E. [Canadian National Exhibition, 1998] and, at the 1996 convention of the American Conference of Cantors, receiving a standing ovation for her two workshops on Yiddish song.

As a piano student of Boris Berlin and Mona Bates, Naomi Bell gave recitals and broadcasts, and was awarded numerous scholarships and prizes. On graduating from the University of Toronto she received the Governor General's Silver Medal in English Literature. For more than twenty years she taught music at various Hebrew and Yiddish schools, and was Music Director of Bialik Hebrew Day School for ten years.
