

Sir Allan MacNab (1798-1862) Papers

Dates: 1830 – 1907

Extent: 28 Boxes (7.5 meters)

Scope and Content: Legal and business papers and correspondence, chiefly relating to MacNab's various property transactions, as well as a small amount of historical material relating to the Rebellion of 1837-1838. Also includes substantial documents from the governing of the Estate after Allan MacNab's death. This includes papers from MacNab's sister-in-law and executor, Sophia Stuart MacNab, as well papers from her successors, Mary Stuart Daly and Caroline Daly. These records pertain to the maintenance of the estate, information on the mortgages owned by the estate and lawsuits.

Bibliographic History: Allan Napier MacNab was born 19 February 1798 in Newark (now Niagara-on-the-Lake) to Allan MacNab and Anne Napier. His father was a Lieutenant in the Queen's Rangers under Lt. Col. John Graves Simcoe. After the Queen's Rangers were disbanded in 1802, the family relocated to York (Toronto). MacNab attended the Home District Grammar School and was a pupil of John Strachan beginning in 1807. At the age of 14, he fought in the War of 1812 at the Battle of York in the militia and later became an ensign in the 49th Foot Regiment and was often referred to as "the boy hero." At the end of the war, he enrolled as a student of the Law Society of Upper Canada in Toronto and worked at the law office of Judge D'Arcy Boulton Sr. He passed the bar and qualified as a barrister and attorney in 1824. In 1821, he married Elizabeth Brooke (1802-1826) and had three children: Robert (1823-1834), Anne Jane (1825 - ) and Elizabeth (1826-1827). His wife died during childbirth in 1826. MacNab relocated to Hamilton in 1826 and began his own law practice. His practice was successful and he began purchasing large tracts of land in the Hamilton area. In 1829, he was sentenced to ten days in jail for contempt after refusing to testify on the hanging in effigy of Lieutenant Governor Sir John Colborne, called the "Hamilton Outrage." Thereafter, MacNab was popular with the Tories and deemed a martyr, which he capitalized on to be elected as the Tory Member of Parliament for Wentworth County. In 1831, he married Mary Stuart, niece of Henry John Boulton, with whom he had two daughters: Sophia Mary (b. 1832-1917), and Mary Stuart (Minnie) (b. 1834 -). In 1832, after his home was destroyed by fire, he purchased the land where he would build Dundurn Castle in 1835. In 1837, he became the speaker of the Upper Canadian House of Assembly and President of the Great Western Railway Company; the first railway company in Upper Canada. A noted opponent of William Lyon Mackenzie, MacNab opposed his reform movement. MacNab was part of the British militia that moved against Mackenzie at Montgomery's Tavern and that sunk an American supply ship, the SS Caroline, during the Upper Canada Rebellion. MacNab also led the militia that defeated rebels led by Charles Duncombe in London Ontario. MacNab's actions in the Upper Canada Rebellion led to him being knighted in 1838. In 1840, Sophia Stuart MacNab, the wife of Allan's brother David Archibald MacNab (1806-1840) and the sister of Allan's wife Mary Stuart MacNab (1817-1891), came to live at Dundurn Castle after the death of her husband and two young sons. Mary MacNab would die in 1846 after a lengthy illness. The 1840s brought complex economic and political change, which resulted in failed business ventures and the breakdown of several political relationships. However, he maintained his business ventures in railroads, once famously stating “all my politics are railroads,” and served in a leadership capacity on the Great Western Railway, the Grand Trunk Railway, the Galt and Guelph Railway, the Hamilton and Toronto Railway, the Hamilton and Port Dover Railway, the North-West Transportation, Navigation and the Railway Company. In politics, MacNab facilitated a coalition between Upper Canadian Conservatives and the Hincks-Morin Reformers and served as premier of the Province of Canada between 1854 and 1856. He was later elected to the Legislative Council of the Province of Canada in 1860, a position he would hold until his death in 1862. MacNab’s daughters both married and relocated abroad. Sophia Mary MacNab married William Coumts Keppel, the 7th Earl of Albemarle, in 1855 and moved to Britain. Sophia MacNab is a direct ancestor of Camila Parker-Bowles, the Duchess of Cornwall. Minnie MacNab married John George Daly, son of Sir Dominick Daly governor of South Australia, in 1861 and relocated to Australia in 1862 and later to England. Allan MacNab died at his Dundurn home and allegedly converted to Catholicism on his death bed. Sophia Stuart MacNab became the trustee of his Estate and managed the properties owned by MacNab. Sophia purchased Dundurn castle in 1868 and leased it as an asylum for the deaf and dumb until 1872. Sophia then sold Dundurn to Donald MacInnes who lived there until 1899. The City of Hamilton purchased the castle in 1899 and restored it in 1961. Sophia immigrated to Australia but later returned to live in Toronto and died on 19 April 1891. Sophia left her estate to Mary Stuart Daly and her daughter Caroline Sophia Daly.

Custodial History: The collection of historical documents relating to the Rebellion and some later, individually noteworthy, MacNab items were given to the Library by the Earl of Albemarle in 1968. In 1970, two tin deed boxes containing the business papers and the Sophia MacNab estate papers were discovered in a cupboard in the University of Toronto’s History Department where they had been overlooked for many decades. They were transferred to the Library in the same year. The estate papers were kept in envelopes by subject matter, where possible these envelopes have been preserved with the material they contained.
