OUTRAM (Richard Daley) Papers

Gift from the Estate of Richard Outram, 2005

Dates: 1955-2005

Extent: 37 boxes (5.2 metres)

Scope and content: This collection comprises the bulk of Richard Outram's literary output. It includes drafts of poetry – both published and unpublished – and essays, as well as professional and personal correspondence. It also includes numerous broadsheets of Outram's poetry and work by his wife, the artist Barbara Howard.

Biographical information: Richard Daley Outram was born in Oshawa, Ontario, in 1930, but soon after moved to Toronto with his parents. From 1944 to 1949, he attended high school in Leaside, which was then still on the outskirts of the city. From 1949 to 1953, he was enrolled in the Honours B.A., English and Philosophy course at Victoria College in the University of Toronto. Two of his teachers, the philosopher Emil Fackenheim and the critic Northrop Frye, had a profound and lasting effect on him. During the summers of 1950 and 1951, Outram also served as an officer cadet in the reserve system of the Royal Canadian Navy, aboard frigates in the Bay of Fundy and at HMCS Stadacona in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

After graduation, Outram worked with the CBC as a television stagehand for a year, then he moved to London, England, where he worked as a television stagehand for the BBC between 1955 and 1956. During those years he began to write poetry. While in London, he met his future wife, the Toronto painter and wood-engraver Barbara Howard. They returned to Toronto to marry in 1957. Outram went back to work with the CBC, first, again, as a television stagehand, then as a stage crew foreman, a position he held until early retirement at the age of sixty in 1990.

Between 1966 and 2001, Outram wrote ten commercially published collections of poetry. In addition to these commercial publications, Outram issued over a dozen other collections of poetry and prose under the imprint of The Gauntlet Press, which he founded with his wife in the 1960s. The Gauntlet Press also issued a series of broadsheets of Outram's poems throughout the 1970s and 1980s, all of them designed (and many frequently illustrated) by Howard. As well as his poem and prose broadsheets, the press issued nine small books by Outram in limited editions. Among them are Around & About the Toronto Islands (1993); Tradecraft and Other Uncollected Poems (1994); Eros Descending (1995); Ms Cassie (2000) and Lightfall (2001). Many of the poems from these Gauntlet Press publications (with the exception of Ms Cassie and Lightfall) have been gathered into the commercially available Dove Legend and Other Poems (published by Porcupine's Quill, 2001).

Having lost his wife in 2002, Outram took his own life, dying of hypothermia in Port Hope, Ont., 2005.
