History of Rochdale College:

Rochdale College, which occupied the 18-story building that still stands at 341 Bloor Street West, Toronto, was a co-operative living space for 840 residents and an experimental “free university” that operated between 1968 and 1975. It was one of over 300 tuition-free universities in North America at the time and its residential accommodations included communal living arrangements along with traditional apartments. Located on the edge of the University of Toronto’s downtown campus, and founded on idealistic principles of broadly democratic self-governance, communal living, and education free of traditional forms and hierarchies (such as exams, curriculums, degrees, and a faculty), Rochdale was an example of the kind of countercultural initiatives that emerged in North America during the 1960s and 1970s. It was, in addition, home to many expatriate Americans, often draft resisters who opposed fighting in the Vietnam War.

Rochdale was initially incorporated in 1964 by Campus Co-Operative Residence Incorporated (CCRI), a non-profit organization founded to address university students’ housing needs. Rochdale’s relationship to CCRI was weakened when, for a variety of reasons, it had to accept a large number of non-students (with little or no screening) as residents when the building opened in 1968. In addition, CCRI opposed the educational component of Rochdale. Rochdale consequently separated from CCRI and became its own non-profit corporate entity.

Almost from the beginning, Rochdale faced problems that would eventually lead to its demise. Lack of screening for residents and the existence of communal residence floors facilitated a non-resident “squatter” problem, and substantial drug activity (sales as well as use). This, in turn, led to frequent police raids and complaints from neighbours. Rochdale also had trouble collecting rent from residents and struggled to pay the mortgage on the building. By the early 1970s, the building was in receivership and under the financial control of Clarkson Company, Inc., who put increasing pressure on Rochdale residents and Rochdale’s Governing Council pay their rents or leave the building. By 1974, residents had dwindled to a few hundred, and remaining Rochdale leaders were fighting a losing battle to keep the institution alive. The last Rochdale residents were evicted on May 30, 1975.

Rochdale's legacy lives on today in a number of creative and other institutions that began at the college. These include Coach House Press, House of Anansi Press, Theatre Passe Muraille, The Toronto Free Dance Theatre, and the Huron Playschool Cooperative (originally Rochdale's cooperative daycare).

Custodial History

The Rochdale College Collection consists of materials that had varied custodial histories before their arrival at the Fisher Library. The library purchased the bulk of the materials (Series 1-6; boxes 1-18), in 1977 from Charles Taylor of Akashakron Books in Toronto. The previous ownership of these materials is unknown, but they may likely have come from more than one person. The rest of the materials are gifts to the library that came from four separate donors who either lived at Rochdale or had some other association with the college: Miriam Clavir (2009 gift, Series 7, box 19), Katherine Lochnan (2011 gift, Series 8, box 19), C. Terrance Walker (2018 gift, Series 9, boxes 20-21), and John R. Williams (2013 gift, Series 10, box 22).

Scope and content:

Materials include administrative and financial documents for Rochdale College's Governing Council and Education Council, correspondence; notices posted at Rochdale, newspaper clippings, writings about Rochdale, Rochdale publications, and audio recordings about Rochdale and other topics.

Contains series:

1. General Administration – (includes Governing Council, Education Council materials).
2. Events, programs, newspaper clippings and other writings about Rochdale College.
3. Tuesdaily issues and paste-ups.
4. Publications (not Tuesdaily) and other printed ephemera.
5. Newspaper clippings (not about Rochdale College).
6. Audio recordings.
7. Miriam Clavir Material
8. Katherine Lochnan Material
9. C. Terrance Walker Material
10. John R. Williams Material
11. Charles Edward Cassity Material

Arrangement notes:

With the exception of the C. Terrance Walker materials, the Rochdale Collection was originally catalogued at the Fisher Library as T-10 00013 “[Collection of miscellaneous material issued by and about Rochdale].” The original contents note for T-10 00013 is provided at the end of this document. The original T-10 00013 box number is provided for the folders in the new arrangement listed in the table below.

Except when referring to titles on documents inside a folder, titles given in quotation marks on folders reflect original titles given to original folders in the collection when it was catalogued as

T-10 00013. The wording of these original folder titles in most cases suggest that they may be original to the creator (not assigned by the librarian who initially processed the collection).

Dates in square brackets are speculative based on subject matter and neighboring materials.

Box # and contents	T-10 13 Box #
Box 18 8 reel-to-reel tapes 15 cassettes 1 CD		Reel-to-reel tapes that came with the 1977 purchase of Rochdale materials from Charles Taylor. All reel-to-reel tapes have been recorded onto cassette tapes for researchers. One of the reel-to-reel tapes is also on CD. Tapes include some recordings about Rochdale, but most are recordings of music and spoken-word performances, possibly recorded from the radio. Dates are given below where they can be determined. REEL-TO-REEL TAPES ARE RESTRICTED AND MAY NOT BE PLAYED
1 reel-to-reel; 1 cassette, 2 CDs	7	“Communism” Description of the CD tracks:  Track 1: 3:09 Segment from a conservative anti-communist U.S. radio show: “Let Freedom Ring” produced in Fairfax, Virginia (just outside of Washington D.C. In the segment, the announcer decries the absence of any mention of a “communist plan for a Negro revolt” in the report from the president’s National Advisory Commission Civil Disorders (the Kerner Commission), which was released in 1968).  Track 2: 1:51 Inaudible voices for the first 50 seconds or so, then a cut to some sort of police report, little to identify it.  Track 3: 3:34 Inaudible  Track 4: 0:51 Seems to be a slightly different part of the same police report, dated Nov. 20, 1951 (no way to tell if this is real or from a radio program  Track 5 (21:36) and Track 6 (15:06) Audio letter from a Rochdale resident to a friend (“Mike”) from whom the speaker has received a Christmas card. [December, 1970]. There is overdubbing on the first two minutes or so of the recording, so it is hard to tell, but Mike is in Berlin, and is possibly serving in the U.S. military. The speaker spends several minutes discussing cars: selling his Fiat in the U.S., buying a Morgan in Toronto, and his efforts to restore the Morgan. He discusses moving into Rochdale, and what it is like to live there, including the drug scene. He discusses the issue of civil liberties and policing in the context of the Cold War (and Mike’s perspective on Communism from Berlin), the Canadian government’s imposition of the War Measures Act with regard to Quebecois separatists in the Fall of 1970, and even the creation of a Rochdale security force to combat the crasher problem there. The speaker mentions Alan Ginsberg’s visit to Rochdale [September, 1970]. He finally expresses an interest in opening a bar in Toronto, and in the process discusses the poor bar culture in the city due to restrictive blue laws still in place. The speaker is never named, but he is American, from the

		Washington D.C. area, lived in Rochdale in 1970/1971, and worked as a cab driver and truck driver.
1 reel-to-reel; 1 cassette	7	“Monologue” –Recording of telephone conversations. [Seems scripted. Radio play or recorded from a spoken-word album?]
1 reel-to-reel; 5 cassettes	7	“Gottlieb I” –Similar content to “Monologue”
1 reel-to-reel; 3 cassettes	7	“Gottlieb I” –music [recorded from the radio]
1 reel-to-reel; 1 cassette	7	CBC Radio programme. “Concern” – Recording of meeting re: film project at Rochdale; other programs at Rochdale; funding for Rochdale; interviews with Rochdale residents re: Rochdale as an alternative educational system (“non-structure”); co-op living and educational experiments; the problem of crashers; history of Rochdale on the co-operative tradition; takeover of the kitchen.  According to CBC Archives, this programme aired Jan 8, 1969. Concern was a CBC radio series hosted by Peter Meggs: http://www.cbc.ca/archives/entry/rochdale-college-organized-anarchy (16:18 of the Rochdale episode is available digitally).
1 reel-to-reel; 2 cassettes	7	“Zitz and Schnitz and Friends”– music – poorly recorded not very audible
1 reel-to-reel; 1 cassette	7	“Guitar Dave (?)” – almost inaudible music
1 reel-to-reel; 1 cassette	7	“Music (commercial)”– music and anti-Vietnam/Lyndon Johnson statements
