(1997)

Extent: 8 boxes and 1 volume (1.5 metres)

Includes typescript and copies of typescript of a Novellae by rabbinic scholar Rabbi Benjamin Wolf (Zeev) Singer (1855-1930).

Biographical information from the foreword by Daniel Sperber in Hiddushei Ha-rabaz Singer to Tractate Shabbat: novellae of Rabbi Benjamin Wolf (Zeev) Singer (1855-1930):

“...Rabbi Benjamin Wolf Singer was born in Varpalota (Hungary) in 1855, the son of the renowned scholar Rabbi Pesach Singer. He was named after his grandfather, the author of Shaare Torah, who was the son of Rabbi Eleazar Löw, known for his most famous book, Shemen Rokeach.

Benjamin Singer studied with his father and in various Yeshivot in Austria-Hungary and Germany before taking up the post of Rabbi of the large congregation in Liptovsky Sv. Mikulas (Slovakia) in 1887, the same congregation where his greatgrandfather had been a rabbi over 60 years earlier. He married Margit (Mindel) Moskovits from Sarospatak (Hungary) the same year and they had 4 sons and 4 daughters. Three of these, Aharon Josef Shmuel (Josef), Pinchas Selig (Siegfried) and Fanny, perished in the Holocaust. Rabbi Singer stayed in Mikulas until 1920 and then moved to Bratislava (Pressburg) where he continued ceaselessly with his studies until his death in 1930. His widow, a wise and capable lady, survived Theresienstadt and her son's imprisonment in the Slansky trial, and died in London in 1963.

Rabbi Singer published Hamadrich, a Talmudic anthology, in collaboration with his brother, Rabbi Abraham Singer of Varpalota in 1882 and Das Buch der Jubiläen (Die Leptogenesis) in 1898.

The present volume forms part of an extensive collection of manuscripts comprising 31 volumes. These were transcribed by his son, Dr. Ernest (Jeremiah) Singer (1895-1976) with the help of Rabbi Isaac Fried of New York City. This single [volume] illustrates the wide interests manifested by Rabbi Singer. His original analytic approach to the study of the Torah and Talmud, and of Halachic, legal and philosophic matters in general, follows the revolutionary approach to study methods by his forbears in Shemen Rokeach and Shaare Torah.

Rabbi Singer also left an extensive collection of Hebraica and Judaica which is one of the few such libraries from Central Europe to be preserved, thanks to Dr. Ernest Singer. The Hebraica portion of the library was donated to Bar-Ilan University and the Judaica portion was given to the University of Toronto Library by Rabbi Singer's grandsons, Pesach (Oscar) and Benjamin (William) Singer, who are both physicians in Toronto...”
