

Title: Marshall McLuhan Library Collection

Creator/compiler: McLuhan, Marshall (1911-1980)

Physical extent: Approximately 6000 volumes.

Biographical note: Herbert Marshall McLuhan was born in Edmonton, Alberta on July 21st, 1911 to Herbert Ernest McLuhan, a salesman, and Elsie Naomi (Hall) McLuhan, an actress and monologist. The family moved to Winnipeg, where McLuhan attended the University of Manitoba from 1929 to 1934, receiving a Bachelor of Arts and a Master of Arts in English literature. McLuhan earned a second masters degree and a PhD, from Cambridge University in 1939 and 1943.

After teaching English at various American universities, McLuhan returned to Canada in 1944 to teach at Assumption College in Windsor. From 1946 until shortly before his death, he taught English at St. Michael's College, University of Toronto. In 1963, McLuhan became the director of the University of Toronto's newly established Centre for Culture and Technology. The Centre conducted research on questions of sensory perception and other communications-related issues and offered academic courses.

McLuhan married Corinne Lewis in 1939. The couple had six children: Eric McLuhan, Teri C. McLuhan, Michael McLuhan, Mary McLuhan, Elizabeth McLuhan, Stephanie McLuhan.

McLuhan's books include the following: The Mechanical Bride (1951); The Gutenberg Galaxy (1962), for which he was awarded the Governor General's prize for critical prose; Understanding Media (1964); The Medium is the Massage (1967, with Quentin Fiore); War and Peace in the Global Village (1968, with Quentin Fiore); Through the Vanishing Point (1968, with Harley Parker); Counterblast (1969, with Harley Parker); Culture is Our Business (1970); From Cliché to Archetype (1970 with Wilfred Watson); Take Today (1972, with Barrington Nevitt); and The City as Classroom (1977, with Eric McLuhan and Kathryn Hutchon.)

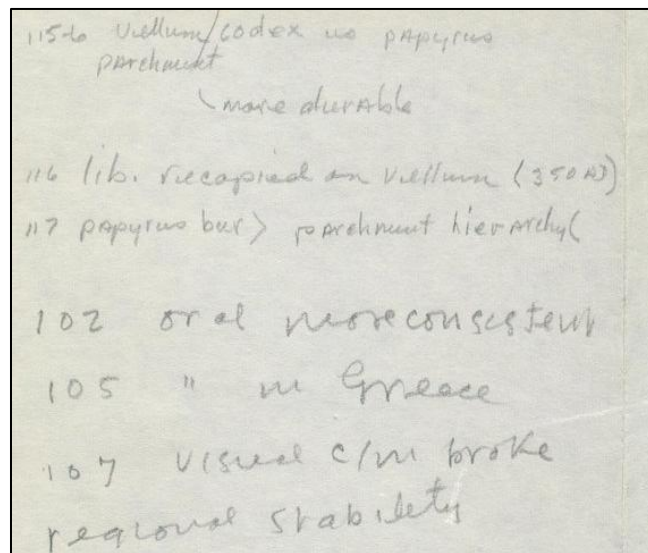

Scope and content: Collection consists of approximately 6000 books, journals and pamphlets that comprise the working library of Herbert Marshall McLuhan. The library reflects McLuhan's diverse personal and academic interests, from Catholicism to the environment, from communications theory to James Joyce. McLuhan read with pen in hand and the majority of the items bear annotations made by him at various stages in his career, as well as occasional annotations made by family and friends who also made use of, and contributed to, the library (see Note on Annotations, below). The collection also includes the many notes, bookmarks, items of correspondence, newspaper clippings, and other documents laid into the books by McLuhan. These have been removed, indexed, and housed separately: added material list.

Note on annotations: Annotations have been qualified as “lightly annotated”, “annotated”, and “heavily annotated.” For the purposes of this index an annotation is defined as words or marks (including underlining and asterisks) written in the margins, on the end papers, or on the dust jackets of the books. McLuhan’s signature as a mark of ownership is not noted as annotation. Shelf markings, if any, are also not noted as annotations.

McLuhan’s practice of annotation changed over time. As a student he was in the habit of quoting long passages from other relevant works; whereas, annotations in later years tended to be shorter, drew directly from the book at hand, and became increasingly coded with his own short forms (see Index to Short Forms, below). While McLuhan generally favoured writing on the end papers and avoided underling, there are exceptions to this.

Note on handwriting: While annotations are predominantly the creation of Marshall McLuhan, Eric McLuhan has also made heavy use of this library and made notes on certain items. This has been indicated where found. The image below provides a side-by-side example of both handwriting styles, with Eric McLuhan’s handwriting on top and Marshall McLuhan’s at bottom.

From note found inside Harold Innis’s, The Bias of Communication (mcluhan add 01648)

Custodial history: Following Marshall McLuhan’s death in 1980, his books were removed from his offices at St. Michael’s College, boxed, and stored in various locations. Their original ordering on those shelves has been lost, though shelf marks made by McLuhan’s secretary, Margaret Stewart, appear on some items. A small percentage of the books bear marks of fire, water, and mould damage as a consequence of a house fire in 2000. The library was acquired from Eric McLuhan in 2013 by the Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library.

Restrictions:

1. Folders housing material formerly laid into books in the McLuhan Library may only be used one at a time.
2. Should any loose material be found inside a book or journal you are viewing, please note the place of insertion and turn the item over to the reading room attendant.
